Aims & Scope

Recent Patents on Biotechnology aims to cover all the latest and outstanding developments in Biotechnology. Each issue of the journal includes full-length/mini-reviews covering a range of current topics in all areas of Biotechnology that reflect or deal with studies concerning a patent or applications of reported patents. Invited and unsolicited review articles are also welcome. Areas of interest cover the whole biotechnology cycle from applied research to product development, including intellectual property rights, regulatory affairs, and business in biotechnology. Contributions regarding aspects of sustainable biotechnology, bioeconomy, and circular biotechnology are particularly encouraged. Patent highlights, briefly (2-3 pages) describing an important recent patent and its impact/applications in biotechnology, are also published.
